REPORT OF THE SEMINAR

- Land surveying is the technique, profession, art, and science of determining the terrestrial two-dimensional or three-dimensional positions of points and the distances and angles between them. A land surveying professional is called a land surveyor.
- These points are usually on the surface of the Earth, and they are often used to establish maps and boundaries for ownership, locations, such as the designed positions of structural components for construction or the surface location of subsurface features, or other purposes required by government or civil law, such as property sales.
- Surveyors work with elements of geodesy, geometry, trigonometry, regression analysis, physics, engineering, metrology, programming languages, and the law. They use equipment, such as total stations, robotic total stations, theodolites, GNSS receivers, retro reflectors, 3D scanners, LiDAR sensors, radios, inclinometer, handheld tablets, optical and digital levels, subsurface locators, drones, GIS, and surveying software.
- Surveying has been an element in the development of the human environment since the beginning of recorded history. The planning and execution of most forms of construction require it. It is also used in transport, communications, mapping, and the definition of legal boundaries for land ownership, and is an important tool for research in many other scientific disciplines.
- Field surveys help in comprehending the prevailing situation and processes in totality and at the ground level. Field surveys facilitate the collection of local level information that is not available through secondary sources.
- For this, we are conducting workshop (Land survey) on dated 08.04.2024 in our civil engineering department. All the civil engineering students are participated in this Program.
- From this program- students got knowledge about the land survey job, they know about land survey and collection of information about the sources.

Students attend the program through offline mode.

REPORT OF THE GUEST LECTURE

This lecture covers a brief explanation for innovation in civil engineering technology and materials used and development in building construction.

The technological innovation of civil engineering construction is involved with the benefit achievements and the brand creation of engineering construction companies, and also closely related with the improvement of people's living conditions. As civil engineering is then principal part of engineering construction, the construction parties of civil engineering must make technological innovation based on the changing and developing society, and use new technologies and new methods to make construction of projects. This paper makes analysis on several means of technological innovation of civil engineering construction, purposed to promote the practical development of civil engineering through helpful discussion and exploration.

For this, we are conducting guest lecture (Innovation in Civil Engineering) on dated 04-09-2023.

REPORT OF THE EVENT

Construction methods are the procedures and techniques that are used during the building process. Modern methods of construction are a process which focuses on off-site construction techniques, such as mass production and factory assembly, as alternatives to traditional building. The process has been described as a 'way'...to produce more, better quality homes in less time.

The term 'advanced construction technology' covers a wide range of modern techniques and practices that encompass the latest developments in materials technology, design procedures, quantity surveying, facilities management, services, structural analysis and design, and management studies.

It combines the speed, quality, and accuracy of in-situ construction with off-site construction's flexibility and cost savings. When compared to traditional procedures, the construction time is significantly lowered by this speedy system.

For this, we are conducting seminar (Advanced construction techniques) on dated 11/03/2024 in our civil engineering department. All the civil engineering students are participated in this Program.

From this program students can gain knowledge about modern techniques and practices are used in construction industry.

Our Sree Sowdambika College of Engineering organize guest lecture on Airport Planning to all Students on 25/03/2024. The purpose of the activity is to test improves the students' Airport field knowledge and understanding of their subject knowledge.

Construction of airport is multi-disciplinary project and in it involves the pooling of various engineering disciplines, agencies, experts, contractors, executives and the end users. Before entering into the real case studies of construction of runways and application of supply chain management technique it is essential to built up the concepts and the general idea about the about airport planning and construction. Airport Planning and Design Fundamentally, the airport is a point of connectivity in the transportation system. At the ends of a trip the airport provides for the change of mode from a ground to air mode or vice versa., with the airport's airside consisting of approach airspace, landing aids, runways, taxiways, and aprons, all leading to the gate where the passenger (or cargo) passes through; and the airport's landside consisting of the areas where the passenger (or cargo) is processed for further movement on land: the arrival and departure concourses, baggage handling, curbsides, and access to parking lots, roads, and various forms of transit. Most design aspects of the airport must reflect the composite understanding of several interrelated factors. Factors include aircraft performance and size, air traffic management, demand for safe and effective operation, the effects of noise on communities, and obstacles on the airways. Various disciplines of engineering are called into use in airport planning and design.

Students attend the program through online mode.

REPORT OF THE EVENT

Our Sree Sowdambika College of Engineering organizes Guest Lectures on“ Advanced Construction Techniques” Students on 29/04/2024. The purpose of the activity to test improves the students' Construction field knowledge and understanding of their subject knowledge.

OBJECTIVES

Advanced Construction Techniques refer to the latest advancements and innovations in the field of civil engineering. This includes new materials, construction techniques, and design approaches that are be in used to create more efficient, sustainable, and cost-effective infrastructure projects.

Additionally, new materials such as carbon fibre composites and ultra-high-performance concrete have opened up new possibilities for creating structures with greater strength and durability. Furthermore, advancements in sensor technology and data analytics have enabled engineers to monitor and analyses the performance of structures in real-time ,allowing for predictive maintenance and early detection of potential issues. As the e technologies continue to evolve, the future of civil engineering looks exciting and promising.

The speaker discussed the benefits of 3D printing ,including reduced waste, lower costs ,and greater design flexibility. They also explained how this technology can be used to create complex geometries that would be difficult or impossible to achieve using traditional construction methods. The speaker then moved on to modular construction, which involves pre-fabricating building components in a factory and then assembling them on-site. This technique has gained popularity due to its ability to significantly reduce construction time and costs, while also improving quality and safety. The speaker provided examples of successful modular construction projects, including hotels, apartments ,and hospitals
